LATE MR. T. E. HUDMAN

FACTORY EMPLOYEES ATTEND FUNERAL

THE funeral of Mr. Thomas E. Hudman, M.R.I.A., of Kenilworth Road, Rathgar, which took place yesterday to Balbriggan Cemetery, was very largely attended.

A native of Paddington, London, Mr. Hudman was for over 30 years Secretary of Messrs. Smyth and Co., hosiery manufacturers, Balbriggan, of which firm his son-in-law, Mr. Lewis Whyte, P.C., is managing director.

He came to Dublin in 1870 and worked for a time under the late Mr. Hague, the well-known church architect, and later in the office of Mr. J. H. Bridgeford, Merrion Street.

He married Miss Pile, a relative of Sir Thomas D. Pile, a former Lord Mayor of Dublin.

LARGE ATTENDANCE.

The hearse conveying the remains to Balbriggan was met at the outskirts of the town by a large gathering, including the employees of Messrs. Smyth and Co.

A Service was held in St. George's Church, Balbriggan, by Rev. L. A. W. Hunter, LL.B. Rector, who also officiated at the graveside.

The chief mourners were:—Mrs. Hudman (widow); Mrs. Lewis Whyte (daughter); Mr. Lewis Whyte (son-in-law); Capt. Maurice Whyte (Grandson); Mr. D. Pile (nephew); Mrs. S. Pile (sister-in-law); Mr. F. Gray (grand-nephew), and Mr. A. Ellis (relative).

HUDMAN, THOMAS EDMUND BIOGRAPHY

IRISH ARCHITECTURAL ARCHIVE (Dictionary of Irish Architects 1720 – 1940)

Born: 1852

Died: 1937

Architect, of Dublin. Thomas Hudman, only child of Daniel Hudman, debt collector, by his wife Sophia Matilda (née Barrand) was born in North Hyde, Middlesex, England, on 18 September 1852 and was articled to ROBERT WILLIAM EDIS in London in 1867, serving a four-year pupillage. He is described as an architect in the English census of 1871, when he was living with his parents in the Canal Office, Paddington, where his father was second clerk. After completing his pupillage he worked as an assistant in the offices of Frederic Chancellor in London and William Dawes and William Reid Corson in Manchester. He came to Ireland later in the 1870s to work in the office of WILLIAM HAGUE and subsequently joined the staff of JAMES HARGRAVE BRIDGFORD.& #160; In 1893 he set up his own practice.

Hudman was an active participant in the revival of the Architectural Association of Ireland in 1896 and, according to his obituarist in the Irish Builder, was 'largely instrumental in forming the classes which were then constituted'. He gave lectures and arranged tours for the association and in 1900 was temporary secretary of the sketching and camera club.(1) Several of his photographs were published in the Irish Builder(2) and were used to illustrate the Irish section of the American Architect and Builder's publication, The Georgian Period, issued in parts between 1899 and 1902. Hudman was invited to contribute the text for this section in 1901, as a result of his having given a lecture on Georgian architecture to the AAI the previous year.(3) In December 1906 he embarked on a series of articles on 'The Industrial Resources of Ireland' for the Irish Builder.(4) In announcing the series, the Irish Builder noted that his 'well-known practical knowledge and close acquaintance with the building trade [and] his habits of observation of such matters peculiarly fit him to write such a series of articles'.(5) Only two of the promised series of articles actually appeared.

In 1885 Hudman married Ada Pile, a sister of Thomas Pile, auctioneer and wholesale fishmonger, who became lord mayor of Dublin in 1900 and was created a baronet in the same year. They had one child. Through his connection with the Pile family Hudman received the commission to design Earlsfort Mansions, a block of flats on Earlsfort Terrace, which were erected by James P. Pile in 1896.(6) Hudman's last recorded commission was for the Exchange Buildings in Lord Edward Street, erected in 1910-1912.(7) In his latter years he gave up architecture and became secretary to the hosiery manufacturers Smyth & Co., of Balbriggan, although, according to his obituarist, 'his heart always remained with his old profession of architect'. He died at his home, 2 Kenilworth Road, Dublin, on 8 February 1937 at the age of eighty-five. (8) His widow survived him.

AAI:(9) elected member, 1897; lecture on 'Architectural Practice 200 Years Ago', 7 Nov 1899;(10) secretary of sketching & camera club, 1900;(11) lecture on 'Georgian Architecture in Dublin', 20 Nov 1900;(12) vice-president, 1901-1902; lecture on 'Irish Abbeys', 31 January 1905; membership lapsed 1906; renewed membershuip 1913; lecture on 'The Annual Excursion, 1914', 15 Dec 1914;(13) membership lapsed again, 1924.

RIAI: elected member, 16 Dec 1899, having been proposed by WILLIAM KAYE-PARRY , seconded by WILLIAM MANSFIELD MITCHELL and RICHARD CAULFIELD ORPEN ;(14) membership lapsed 1903.(15)

Addresses:(16) Work: 49 Dawson Street, 1899.(17)

Home: 16 Peafield Terrace, Blackrock, <=1879->=1883; 3 Summerville Terrace, North Circular Rd, 1896; Marsworth, Sandford Rd, <=1899->=1902; 27 Belgrave Rd, Rathmines, <=1907-1912;(18) 2 Kenilworth Road, Rathgar, 1913 until death.(19)

Pile, who lived at Sandford Park and developed the row of half-timbered houses along the Sandford Road periphery of the property. Could Hudman also have designed Sandford Park itself for Pile?
